Took Mind From Business.
The dress of women is now sending many men to hell, says an exchange. And this calls to mind a story that Sam Jones told in an Eastern city. Jones said a very wealthy young woman interested in her soul's salvation invited Sam to call at her home and talk with her. Sam accepted this invitation, and when the young lady came tangoing into the parlor he was shocked and bewildered at her low neck, short sleeves, etc. The young lady told him she wanted to talk with him along religious lines, and asked him what she should do to be saved. Sam looked and saw and said: "Sister, I could talk politics with you in the dress you are wearing, but not religion. If you want to talk religion with me, for Heaven's sake go and throw something around you. It takes my mind off my business."
